              THE CLERK: Woods versus City of New York.
11
              State your names for the record.
12
                          Sure. Good morning, Your Honor.
              MR. BLOOM:
13
    Bloom, Harmon Linder & Rogowsky, 3 Park Avenue, Suite 2300, 14
    New York New York, 10016, for the plaintiff.
15
              THE COURT: Go ahead.
              MR. TAYLOR: Scott Taylor from Rosenbaum & Taylor, 16
    7-11 South Broadway, Suite 401, White Plains, 10601, for 17
18
    defendant Port Authority.
19
              MS. ARIBAKAN: Good morning, Your Honor. Suzanne 20
    Aribakan for the City of New York, New York City Law
21
    Department, 100 Church Street, New York, New York, 10007.
              THE COURT: What's the story? What kind of case is 22
23
    this?
24
              MR. BLOOM: It's an assault and battery case.
25
              THE COURT:
                          Police?
```

3 MR. BLOOM: Yes, sir. 1 2 What's the story? THE COURT: 3 MR. BLOOM: An incident at Kennedy Airport. 4 THE COURT: Okay. MR. BLOOM: Parking in front of the terminal. 5 THE COURT: 6 And? 7 MS. ARIBAKAN: Your Honor, our position is that NYPD 8 is not involved. They were not proper parties. 9 MR. BLOOM: I don't think -- the problem with that 10 is we haven't been able to identify whether the officers 11 involved were Port Authority Police which I presume they are 12 or New York, New York Police, New York City police officers. 13 MS. ARIBAKAN: Your Honor, in response to counsel's 14 assertion, I produced in our Rule 26 disclosures the notice of claim that attaches the Port Authority arrest report which 15 identifies the arresting officer and a shield number. 16 I've done a search. NYPD does not have an officer 17 18 with the last name that matches the shield number. I've also 19 conducted a search into whether or not Ms. Woods was in police 20 She wasn't. Also, NYPD does not patrol JFK Airport. custody. 21 What's your application? THE COURT: 22 MS. ARIBAKAN: We move to dismiss. 23 THE COURT: Is there an objection to it? 24 MR. BLOOM: My understanding of the purposes of this 25 appearance was to remand it back to State court. There's been a stipulation that's been passed among the parties to agree to 1

4
 2
    a $75,000, below $75,000 jurisdictional limit.
 3
              My understanding was counsel was instructed to make 4
    a motion as to why the City wouldn't sign that stipulation so the Court can remand this matter back to State court.
 5
 6
              THE COURT:
                          You still didn't answer my question.
 7
                                        I think my firm's position
              MR. BLOOM:
                           Understood.
    is that to do discovery to ensure that the officer wasn't,
8
9
    New York Police wasn't involved. We would discontinue once -- 10
    I've never seen the document counsel referred to.
11
              MS. ARIBAKAN:
                              I have a copy here.
12
              THE COURT: Okay. Your motion is granted.
13
              MS. ARIBAKAN:
                             Thank you.
14
              THE COURT: Next. You give him a copy anyway.
              MS. ARIBAKAN:
                              I will.
15
16
              THE COURT: All right.
